

NAGPRA Guidance Document

The Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA) (25 U.S.C. 3001; 43 CFR Part 10) recognizes the rights of lineal descendants, Indian Tribes, and Native Hawaiian organizations in Native American human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony, and provides for the protection and repatriation of human remains and cultural objects to the appropriate descendant communities. Definitions for these terms are included in Appendix 1 of this document. Protection of Native American human remains and cultural items is mandated on federal or tribal lands.

This document is intended to serve as guidance for Federal On-Scene Coordinators (FOSC) to ensure compliance with NAGPRA when responding to an oil spill or hazardous material discharge or release under the Clean Water Act (CWA) and the Oil Pollution Act (OPA) on federal or tribal lands. Ultimately, the owner or manager of the land (landowner) is responsible for complying with NAGPRA. However, the FOSC or their designee should take any and all necessary steps to ensure the proper landowner(s) are given timely notice and provide whatever assistance may be asked of them by the landowner in order to comply with NAGPRA.

This guidance document may be used by all Federal agencies within Regional Response Team 3's (RRT3) planning area (Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia) during incidents when a federal agency or department is implementing or funding the response to an incident under the National Oil and Hazardous Substances Pollution Contingency Plan (40 CFR Part 300).

Federal Agencies and Departments may have additional guidance or policies that apply to NAGPRA or to consultation with Indian Tribes or other Stakeholders. This guidance document is not intended to override or replace any existing Agency or Department guidance. To the extent there is conflict between this guidance and any applicable statutes, regulations, executive orders, laws, or agency guidance or policies, these (and not this guidance document) will take precedence.

RRT3 States and Commonwealth also have statutes on the discovery of human remains. A summary of these statutes is provided in Appendix 2 of this document. FOSCs should refer to these statutes for discoveries of human remains that do not occur on either federal or tribal lands.

Discovery of Human Remains

If response personnel discover human remains (i.e., any physical part of a body) or a burial site, regardless of ancestry, while conducting response operations to include any response actions or personnel/equipment staging, the following procedures will be implemented.,

- 1) All work and activity that could threaten the human remains must stop;
 - a. Work and activities that pose no reasonable threat to the discovery can continue as normal (e.g. response activities occurring 1 mile downstream from the discovery that can reasonably be assumed to have no adverse effect on the discovery)

- 2) A reasonable effort must be made to secure and protect the human remains including, as appropriate, stabilizing or covering the human remains;
 - a. A general good practice is to maintain a 100-ft radius protective buffer around the location of the discovery.
- 3) Notify the FOSC or their designee of the human remains; and
- 4) Report the human remains to local police, State's Attorney, coroner and/or medical examiner requesting them to investigate to determine if the human remains are forensic (recent), historic, or archaeological.
- 5) If the human remains are not forensic and are likely Native American, the human remains should be reported to the following:
 - a. If the discovery occurs on Federal lands, the Federal agency with primary management authority should be notified as well as any Indian Tribe with potential cultural affiliation, if known
 - b. If the discovery occurs on Tribal lands (that is within the boundaries of a Tribal reservation), the Indian Tribe should be notified. Notification should be made to an appropriate official of the Tribe who has been delegated authority and responsibility by that Tribe for human remains or cultural items. This may be a Tribal Historic Preservation Office (THPOs) though not every Tribe has one in place. The Bureau of Indian Affairs may also be contacted if there is difficulty in notifying the Indian Tribe.
 - c. If the discovery is on State or Commonwealth managed lands, or private lands – the State Historic Preservation Office for the respective area should be notified
 - i. The States and Commonwealths within RRT3 may have their own statutes or regulations regarding discovery. Please see Appendix 2 for guidance on those specific statutes.
- 6) If the human remains are determined to be forensic¹, the local police/authorities will conduct an investigation and are responsible for any resulting chain of custody.

Discovery of Objects (funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony)

If response personnel discover Objects (funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony) while conducting response operations to include any response actions or personnel/equipment staging, the following procedures will be implemented. It may not be immediately apparent to response personnel whether an item discovered is a Native American cultural item, but all unanticipated discoveries will follow these procedures until a qualified technical expert can make a determination. A technical expert includes a professional archaeologist that meets the Secretary of the Interior's Professional Qualification Standards²

- 1) All work and activity that could threaten the cultural items must stop;
 - a. Work and activities that pose no reasonable threat to the discovery can continue as normal (e.g. response activities occurring 1 mile downstream from the discovery that can reasonably be assumed will have no adverse effect on the discovery)

- 2) A reasonable effort must be made to secure and protect the cultural items including, as appropriate, stabilizing or covering the object(s);
 - a. A general good practice is to maintain a 100-ft radius protective buffer around the location of the discovery.
- 3) Notify the FOSC or their designee of the cultural items; and
- 4) Report the discovery to the following:
 - a. If the discovery occurs on Federal lands, the Federal landowning agency should be notified should be notified as well as any Indian Tribe with potential cultural affiliation, if known.
 - b. If the discovery occurs on Tribal lands (that is within the boundaries of a Tribal reservation), the appropriate Tribe should be notified. Notification should be made to an appropriate official of the Tribe who has been delegated authority and responsibility by that Tribe for human remains or cultural items. This may be a Tribal Historic Preservation Office (THPOs) though not every Tribe has one in place. The National Association of Tribal Historic Preservation Offices (NATHPO) maintains a contact list for THPOs.³ The Bureau of Indian Affairs may also be contacted if there is difficulty in notifying the Indian Tribe.
 - c. If the discovery occurs on State or private lands, the appropriate State Historic Preservation Office should be notified.

Questions on this document or general questions about NAGRPA can be directed to the Department of the Interior's representative to RRT3 or to other members of the RRT3's Cultural, Historic, and Environmental Resources Committee.

Appendix 1. Definitions

- Burial site
 - The term burial site means any natural or prepared physical location, whether originally below, on, or above the surface of the earth, into which as part of the death rite or ceremony of a culture, individual human remains were deposited, and includes rock cairns or pyres which do not fall within the ordinary definition of grave site.
- Custody
 - Having an obligation to care for the object or item but not a sufficient interest in the object or item to constitute possession or control. In general, custody through a loan, lease, license, bailment, or other similar arrangement is not a sufficient interest to constitute possession or control, which resides with the loaning, leasing, bailing, or otherwise transferring museum or Federal agency.
- Funerary objects
 - Funerary Objects means items that, as part of the death rite or ceremony of a culture, are reasonably believed to have been placed intentionally at the time of death or later with or near individual human remains [or within the burial pit or immediate burial area].
 - Associated funerary objects shall be understood to mean objects placed intentionally with human remains and still physically associated in space with such remains. The location of objects within the grave fill or in immediate proximity to human remains shall be understood to be evidence of intentional placement with the human remains.
 - Unassociated funerary objects shall be understood to mean objects that were made exclusively for burial purposes or to contain human remains whose association has been disturbed through road or house building activities and subsequent maintenance, vandalism, erosion, rodent activity, or any other ground disturbing phenomena.
- Human remains
 - Human remains shall be understood to mean the physical remains of a human body of Native American ancestry. This does not include human hair that may reasonably be determined to have been freely given or shed naturally and incorporated into utilitarian objects such as netting, rope, or pottery. For the purposes of determining cultural affiliation, human remains incorporated into a funerary object, sacred object, or object of cultural patrimony, as defined below, must be considered as part of that item.
- Indian tribe
 - Any Tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community of Indians, including any Alaska Native village (as defined in, or established pursuant to, the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act), recognized as eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States Government to Indians because of their status as Indians by its inclusion on the list of recognized Indian Tribes published by the Secretary of the Interior under the Act of November 2, 1994 (25 U.S.C. 5131).

- Lineal descendant
 - A living person tracing ancestry, either by means of traditional Native American kinship systems, or by the common-law system of descent, to a known individual whose human remains, funerary objects, or sacred objects are subject to NAGPRA
- Objects of cultural patrimony
 - Objects of cultural patrimony shall be understood to mean items having ongoing historical, traditional, or cultural importance central to the [tribe/group], rather than items that could be owned by individual tribe or organization members. These objects are of such central importance that they may not be alienated, appropriated, or conveyed by any individual tribal or organization member.
 - [Consultation will occur to determine whether or not objects recovered fall within this definition.]
- Sacred objects
 - Sacred objects shall be understood to mean items that are specific ceremonial objects needed by traditional [] religious leaders for the practice of traditional religions by their present-day adherents. While many items might be imbued with sacredness in the eyes of an individual, these regulations are specifically limited to objects that were devoted to a traditional Inupiat religious ceremony or ritual and which have religious significance or function in the continued observance or renewal of such ceremony.
 - [Objects falling under this definition have not yet been determined. Consultation will occur to determine whether or not objects recovered fall within this definition.]
